A man accused of robbing a Subway in Kiln was convicted of armed robbery on Wednesday afternoon.

On the evening of Feb. 6 of this year, William Black, 38, held two Subway work-

MDEQ still eyeing DuPont plan for new hazardous waste site

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

At their board meeting in Jackson on Tuesday, the Mississippi Department of Quality Environmental (MDEQ) issued three permits to DuPont DeLisle: A mining përmit; a renewal of the facility's hazardous waste permit; and a permit for tanks used for the treatment of liquid waste that will eventually be disposed of in the plant's deep injection wells.

The three permits were tied to the wetland's fill application at a recent joint public hearing hosted by the MDEQ and the Corps. But the three permits that were issued have no bearing on the proposed wetlands fill, said project manager with the MDEQ Toby Cook.

The mining permit, issued for a proposed 40acre open pit clay mine on the Kiln DeLisle Rd. is needed for the plant to mine clay which will become one of the layers in a cap that the plant plans to install on each of the ten already existing hazardous waste sites, as they become full,

Southern Regional's Doyle Ladner honored as Operator of the Year

THE SEA COAST ECHO Picavune resident, Doyle Ladner has earned the 2003 Scott Award for Don Outstanding Wastewater Operator of the Year presented by the Mississippi Water and Pollution Control Operators' Association. Mr. Don Scott, for whom the award is named, presented the award at the 50th Celebration of Operator Training at the Pearl River Resort in Choctaw, MS on July 22nd. MWPCOA represents more than 1,800 certified water and wastewater operators in the state.

Ladner, employed by the Regional Southern Wastewater Management District for 14 years, is responsible for the daily plant operations for the wastewater treatment facility in Waveland, an activated sludge process facility which serves the cities of Waveland, Bay St. Louis, and most of Hancock County with a population of 40,000. He is responsible for budgets, safety and training programs.

The Don Scott Award is presented each year to a wastewater operator who exemplifies professionalism and dedication to his work. MWPCOA members submit nominations which are reviewed by Association's Board of Governors. A final selection committee visits the operator's facility and conducts an interview from which the final recipient is for the honor and support. He said he was honored to be recognized by the MWP-COA and his peers for this award. He said "I would like to thank the Selection Committee, my wife, Diantha. A special thanks to Shervl Colson and Nettie Butsch of SRWMD for nominating me. I would also like to thank the staff of SRWMD and the Board of Directors: Also, I would like to thank Nick Gatain of MDEQ, Southern Regional Office for all the help he has given me over the years." Ladner said "It is an honor just to be nominated for this award. And I am especially honored to receive the award from Mr. Don Scott." Ladner is one of more than 800 certified wastewater operators in Mississippi. Administered through the Department

Environmental Quality, Office of Pollution Control, the state's certification program requires every community wastewater system in the state to employ a certified operator. Minimum certification requirements include a passing grade on a written examination and at least one year of experience with a wastewater system.

Sheriff's undercover officer suspended

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS Publisher Emeritus

A Hancock County Department undercover officer has been suspended following DUI, a fight, resisting arrest, a high speed chase, and other charges, according to Sheriff Steve Garber.

Garber said, "Around 6 a.m. Sunday morning an altercation occurred at the American Legion Parking lot on Highway 603, when a department's undercover officer was involved in a fight which allegedly involved a gun and knife.

"Following the altercation, the undercover officer is alleged to have hit a parked vehicle in the lot while trying to chase the other party.

"The undercover officer was in a county-owned vehicle and the chase continued south bound on 603 through Kiln. Lt. Phillip Pavolini Deputy Charles and Lafontaine, on patrol, observed the chase, not knowing the circumstances. "The officers stopped the two vehicles at Highway 603 at Stennis Drive. The pursuit exceed speeds of 100 miles per hour. Upon checking the vehicles occupants. was occupied by the undercover officer. He appeared to had been in a fight and deputies smelled alcohol on his breath and placed him under arrest after he refused a intoxiler test."

Garber said a name was not released because of the nature of the undercover officer's work.

Deputies secured warrant issued by Justice Court Judge Ricky Adams to have blood drawn from the undercover officer. Results are incomplete at this time, Garber's report said.

The undercover officer is charged with D.U.I., refused test, failure to yield to blue lights and siren, resisting arrest by flight, reckless driving and running a red light, according to the report.

Garber said, "The case is under investigation by the Criminal Investigation Division of the department. The undercover person has been suspended pending the outcome of the investiga-

Buyer beware: Home sites may not be usable

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

Hancock County building officials are urging property buyers to beware before they buy Officials say perspective buyers should check with the county permit office before they purchase property because you lot had been a single 50 foot just may not be able to build lot of record. But because on the property you buy.

That has been the case for several recent buyers of 50 foot lots. County zoning laws require that front footage be at least 75 feet in R-1. but there are some exceptions to that rule.

At a recent commissioners meeting, Gary Copp and Kevin Bennett petitioned the board for permission to build a residence on a 50 foot lot in the Jourdan River Estates subdivision. The denied. Another request from Jonathon Stewart in the Shoreline Park Subdivision was tabled pending further information on ownership of adjoining property.

Commissioners said they would have allowed Copp and Bennett's request if the lot had been a single 50 foot Copp originally owned both the lot in question and the lots on either side of the property, the board denied his request to divide the property.

The two had also requested a variance on setbacks. Commissioners said that the variance request only served to prove that a 50 foot lot was too small for the house Bennett had in mind. A neighbor of Stewart's said he had no problem with

Stewart building on the lot as long as he stayed within the stated setback requirements.

A few weeks back, Commissioners gave developer Rodney Corr permission to build on several adjoining 50 foot lots in Shoreline Park. Corr said he had already installed driveways and utility access to each site and had invested considerable capital in the project. Corr also agreed to build within stated set-

Neighborhoods like Shoreline Park and Jordan River Estates were originally divided into 50 foot lots and the Planning and Zoning Board says they will take each question about property in these types of areas on a case by case

In other business:

• Commissioners told Mary R. Perdigao, a Harrison Rd. resident, that she will have to remove a bathroom located under her elevated residence. The bathroom is below base flood elevation and therefore not allowed according to flood zone ordinances. Perdigao was reported by her insurance company.

The house, and the bathroom, was built by a licensed contractor in 2000, said Perdigao, who did not inform her that the bathroom was a violation of zoning ordinances. Now she has added a pool and wants the bathroom to stay for use by the pool guests, she says. She plans to appeal the decision.

Commissioners approved a request by

Stennis Technology Park Inc. to revise a site plan which would increase the size of a building at the park from 16,000 sq. feet to 20,800 sq. feet.

• Mark and Jayne Evans received site plan approval for an addition to their bar/restaurant, Turtle Landing. Commissioners attached a request that music from the business be kept at an acceptable vol-

Don't miss the After Hours

the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours this evening from 5 to 7 p.m. The August event is co-sponsored by Dupont Library \mathbf{the} Foundation of Hancock County and will be held a the Bay Library, 312 Highway 90.

Be sure to bring along a couple of business cards, as there will be several door prizes.

Whenever there is an After Hours at the Library, there is always very good food, entertainment and lots of folks.

We hope to see you at the After Hours this evening and visit with our old friends and make new ones too.

The event is open to chamber members and guests.

The dramatic change in temperature this past weekend was really welcomed.

Even with the temperature reaching the 80s, the stiff breezes sure made it feel cool compared to what our temperatures have been in the past months.

Driving around the community, I noticed many folks taking advantage of the cooler weather and working on their lawns and gardens.

It won't be long before it will be time to plant Fall flower and vegetable gardens.

The Sunday night and on't forget Monday rains helped cool things too, and it was beginning to get a bit dry in the area. Over the past several weeks we have had a lot of rain threats, which did not amount to much.

Many say they are looking for a cooler Fall, and that's me too.

It has been some time since I have gotten on my "soap box" to comment on one of my pet peeves. Those of you who have followed my column over the years should know what I am referring too.

Anyway, while walking in my neighborhood Sunday evening, I saw a sedan cross Highway 90 at Dunbar Avenue with only one headlight operational.

It is possible that since I do not travel as much at night as I once did, there may be others out there too.

I am still reminded occasionally by someone who has seen a "oneeyed" vehicle

The operation of a vehicle with only one headlight is a violation of the law for one thing, and for another, is dangerous.

I realize that other vehicles can occasionally kick rocks up off the pavement and break your headlights; still it does not take much effort for a driver to check his lights to see if they are all operational. While talking about column chiding him years I have advocated that for his false statements Mississippi Public Broadcasting that we're "the highest taxed state in the nation."

It gives me a good opportunity to further debunk Herring's asserthat tions Mississippians are overtaxed, and that our tax structure is hindering job creation in this state.

As I had written before, it's pure hogwash to say that Mississippians are the heaviest taxed, when the reverse is true. We're among the lightest taxed states.

Our sales tax because

"m glad state GOP groceries are taxed at the the index. chairman Jim Herring full rate is our only high has taken issue in tax, as I had pointed out in print with my recent the earlier column. For food should be totally exempt or taxed at a lower rate. However, the sales tax is a consumer tax, not a business tax, which seems to be all that Herring, and evidently some other Republicans who have written to me, are concerned about when they buy into this "highest taxed" idea.

Eyes on

Mississippi

By Bill Minor

Herring uses as his "source" a 2002 ranking of states' according to a "business tax climate index" put out by an outfit called the Foundation Washington, D.C. which shows Mississippi 50th on

Rather than being a nonpartisan organization as Herring said, it turns out that the Tax Foundation was begun and is supported by a group of corporate executives who are big contributors to the Republican

As a fact check I find out that the Tax Foundation's "business index" actually does not reflect the state's tax burden, but is based on a complicated formula of secret ingredients, sort of like Colonel Sanders' secret formula of 13 herbs and spices. But even the Tax Foundation's own website earlier this year shows corporate Mississippi income taxes are the 6th LOWEST nationally. So no corporate-backed think tank, nor can Herring, make a valid claim that this state's tax structure is hurting industrial development.

A much more reliable index of Mississippians, tax burden is one published by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities taken directly from the U.S. Bureau of Census report. It shows for 2002 Mississippi was 49th in per capita local and state tax burden, just the opposite of what Herring says.

Let's talk a moment about taxes impacting on business. Mississippi, historically since the "balance agriculture with industry" days began in the 1940s has written into the law every concession any lawmaker could think up to curry favor with business and industry.

Almost any new type of business that comes along finds friends in the Legislature who sponsor a 10 year exemption from local property taxes for it.

If an appointment in another congressional district is not used, Mrs. Martin makes sure we can fill that spot. She has been working with me since day one and is the best source of information when it comes to questions about the service academies.

Every fall, usually in October, Mrs. Martin organizes an Academy Day at USM in Hattiesburg. Academy admissions officers, cadets, and graduates, come to talk to interested students and answer any questions they have. I encourage any high school South student in Mississippi to attend this function if they are considering an academy as an option. He was awarded the 2004 Civic Association Pioneer Award, a dedication and achievement award form the association and a citizen's volunteer award from the city. He is an active fundraiser for community and charitable causes.

Fountain says a priority is the resurfacing major thoroughfares in the city, and city planning, especially the issue of clear cutting trees during development, which he is against. Fountain said he would like to see a parking lane on the beach side of Beach Blvd. so that visitors and residents do not have to cross the busy street or park in people's yards. Through past employment, he has experience in internal consulting, capital projects, safety and security, business, budget analysis, contract management and community development.

Yarbrough says he would like to see a cleaner city. Though he feels basic services must be a priority, he would also like to see the city update its zoning ordinances to reflect a clear picture of where the city is heading with its growth. He would like to see the improvement, not just the maintenance, of the residential feel of the city, he says. Yarbrough would like to see the city have a five year business plan, that would be revised as needed annually, and published accountability reports. said Martin. The plant is required to cap the sites as they become full, said Cook. The clay will also be used in the construction of the 32acre hazardous waste site or for the construction of another site in an alternate location if a permit is approved, said Cook.

To obtain the mining permit, Cook said, the plant had to submit a storm water control plan. The plan requires the plant to remove floating debris, eroded solids and suspended solids from any storm water runoff. Any storm water run-off which could eventually make it to the Bay will have to be free from these elements, according to the terms of the permit, Cook said. Run-off would be from storm water only, Cook said, not from any mining process.

A decision on DuPont DeLisle's request for a permit to fill in 24 acres of wetlands to construct a 32-acre hazardous waste site near the Bay of St. Louis is still pending, said Regulatory Branch Project Manager John McFayden of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on Wednesday. The Corps is currently working on an environmental assessment and has asked DuPont officials to look at alternative locations for the site, he

Plant officials will be required to substantiate their reasons, should they deem alternative sites to be unsuitable, said McFayden. If they are able to do so, the Corps will still consider the McFayden said. wetlands permit, he said.

DuPont DeLisle environmental manager Brian Martin said the plant is looking at alternative sites, but that the original site is still being considered as a viable location for the new hazardous waste site.

Last month, both the Harrison and Hancock Board County Supervisors unanimously passed motions asking the Corps to deny DuPont's request for the land fill. McFayden said that the Corps would take the boards "comments" into consideration, but that taken alone, the requests would not be the deciding factor on the Corps's decision on the permit application for the wetlands fill. The Corps will also need a Water Quality Certification from the MDEQ stating that the fill will not degrade water quality in the Bay, and a Coastal Zone Consistency Permit from the Department of Marine Resources stating that the project is consistent with coastal plans, before any permits could be issued for the wetlands fill, Environmental activist Jerry Landrum said he thinks that the permits issued by the MDEQ should have been dependent on the Corps decision, not separate issues. He said he is concerned that once in place, the mining operation itself will become a potential waste site.

"I understand that the boards are not part of the approval process, but they do clearly reflect the consensus of the people and should be given great weight," said Landrum.

"We feel that the permit issued for the four treatment tanks will increase safety," said Cook. "Because the permit requires two rubber lined tanks to be Continued from Page 1A inspected at least annually." The tanks were already in use but did not require permits if they were emptied every 90 days, said Cook. The permits will allow continuous use of the tanks.

The Sierra Club and Gulf Islands Conservancy have appealed a previous decision by the MDEQ's permitting board to issue a permit to would allow increased emissions at the DuPont DeLisle plant. The board will be required to hold.an evidentiary hearing to allow the two groups to present expert testimony. No date has been set for the hearing.

Three hours later, investigators from the Hancock County Sheriff's department arrested Black along with Rodney Harbin - also from Kentucky - at Black's trailer in Kiln. Harbin told investigators he was in Mississippi to help Black move. Harbin is currently being held as an accessory after-the-fact for the same robbery.

He told investigators that Black had returned to the trailer acting "paranoid" and saying that he had "done a Jesse James."

Black's neighbors also testified that they had heard Black make comments that same afternoon such as, "A man is naked without his gun."

During interrogation, however, Black stated that Harbin, not he, had committed the robbery.

Robert White, who is currently awaiting trial at the Hancock County Jail for aggravated assault and burglary, said that on the night of Feb. 6, he saw Harbin running across Highway 603 wearing a black hood. He then said that Harbin had tried to sell him a gun.

Tom Roan, an investigator with the Sheriff's department said Black gave details that seemed "all wrong." In his statement, Roan said, Black described things that only an individual who had been at the crime scene would know. Black was sentenced to 40 years, to serve day-forday on count two, armed robbery; on count one, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, he received five years, to run concur-

BY JACK ELLIOTT JR. ASSOCIATED PRESS Mississippi Secretary of

State Eric Clark's dogged determination that someends has brought his cause another victory in Harrison County courts. A judge ruled last week that gaming regulators exceeded their authority by approving plans Treasure Bay to move its casino barge to a man-made basin. For Treasure Bay and the Gaming Mississippi Commission, the issue was the first over protecting a multibillion industry from the elements, such as hurricanes. Others in the industry saw it as a first test of the chance that casinos ultimately move inland. For Clark, in seven years of such litigation, the issue has been protecting the public tidelands. And Harrison County courts, with few exceptions, have agreed.

When we have been sued, it usually is over enforcing the laws, and we have been generally successful in the courts," Clark said last week.

Clark fully expects the Treasure Bay decision to withstand any appeal.

Treasure Bay, which claims it has sustained $39 million in damages from storms and hurricanes over the past decade, sought to move its gambling barge to a more protected spot adjacent to its current location. Treasure Bay says the land in question was filled water bottoms and was approved by regulatory agencies for the move.

Circuit Judge Robert Walker said the Gaming Commission had no authority to approve a site on land next to the waters south of Harrison County: Walker said 100 percent of the new site is on land that would have to be dredged.

State waters are tidelands, the earth beneath the water near the shore. The state owns the land, and companies operating on the water above the tidelands

And when water rises

the state," Clark said. Treasure Bay's likely appeal of Walker's ruling thing will remain of the could renew the legal Gulf Coast's pristine beach wedebate over what are proes after casino development tected, state waters. The Gaming Commission and Treasure Bay thought the land was public tidelands where gaming was allowed.

Judge Walker's decision has far-reaching ramifications on not on the future industry growth and jobs but more profoundly con existing casino properties and thousands of existing jobs," Treasure Bay CEO Bernie Burkholder said last week.

Earlier this year, the Mississippi Supreme Court upheld the secretary of state's authority over the leasing of tidelands, backing a Harrison County judge who ruled in 2001 that the Clark could veto a proposed lease on public tidelands.

The decision settled a challenge by Treasure Bay and Imperial Palace to the charging of rent and the levying of taxes on casino barges on public tidelands.

Clark said there are three goals in managing tidelands: That the rules are sensible and easily understood; next, that the law is enforced; and, finally, that the rent is fair.

We have been very clear that we don't lease to anybody who would endanger Keesler Air Force Base and we will not lease next to the public beach. That ought to be for the public," Clark said. "We want to keep casinos in urban commercial areas.'

Clark said his office has aggressively defended those ideas and has won. He said the issue is striking a balance between economics and quality of life.

As I have said before, keep the coast, the coast," Clark said. People don't go to the Gulf Coast because they were going to Detroit and made a wrong turn."

Sean Patrick Finegan (12) Joseph Wesley Winningham (12)

Died August 14, 1999 Webb St. Railroad Crossing, Bay St. Louis, MS

Dear sweethearts, for the last five years our quality of live has been lost. You affected our lives in ways others may never get a chance to experience. Just your presence in our midst said it all. As long as you were a part of our lives, we were very content. But who are we without you? We are still searching for ourselves. We are forced to continue to press forward in life. We find some comfort knowing you left us a part of yourselves, and we never will truly be without you altogether.

We miss and love you so much Ceci, Sean and Joe-Joe, and will forever. Thank you for loving us, as we will forever hold a strong love for you.

Minor -- taxation

The exemption is part of the tax code and rarely, if ever, removed.

Remember all the while, that unlike many states, Mississippi does not levy a state ad valorem (property) tax and hasn't for more than 40 years.

It seems ironic that in 2002, the year Herring and the Tax Foundation claim Mississippi's "business tax climate" ranked 50th, the state was landing its biggest industry ever, the huge $2 billion Nissan auto plant.

Of course as is well known-and some grumbled about it at the time-the state had to give Nissan. some rather sweet financial inducements and tax concessions in order to meet competition of other states willing to give their eye teeth to get an auto factory.

Economist Robert G. Lynch of the Economic Policy Institute, who has helped state lawmakers around the country deal with the relationship of taxes and services says he finds state and local taxes actually have little effect on a state's business climate.

"If you add up all the lawmakers refuse to exempt state and local taxes paid by businesses, they account for only 0.8 percent of business costs." he said in a recent report. Further, Lynch says, any state tax hikes used to improve vital public services actually make state economies stronger rather than hurting chances of business development.

Mississippi's 7 percent general sales tax rate with no exemption or reduction for food, puts us among the eighth highest in the nation.

Unfortunately, the sales tax has become state lawmakers, tax of choice when they are desperate to raise new revenue, particularly, to fund public education. One reason the sales tax is the softest target is that consumers who pay the tax have no lobbyists at the Capitol as compared with business-industry groups whose lobbyists protect them from income tax hikes. All the while, however. Mississippi's sales tax law contains some 400 exemptions of specific servgroceries or give them a lower rate.

The Mississippi's Legislature tackled head-on the issue of cutting the sales tax rate on food was in 1995. A bill to reduce it by half failed by only five votes to get the necessary three-fifths for passage in the House.

Since Mississippi's general sales tax was enacted in 1932, dozens of agricultural items, beginning with feed, seed, fertilizer or insecticides, have enjoyed exemptions from the tax.

Significantly, Gov. Haley Barbour later this month is holding a day-long conference with state agriculture leaders, however nothing on the agenda suggests that agricultural sales tax exemptions will come up for a discussion.

Nobody should be happy with Mississippi's existing tax structure. But the real problem is that it is inequitable, putting about 80 percent of the burden on consumers, mostly at the lower income level.

But I don't hear Jim Herring advocating that Republican lawmakers join Democrats in tax equity reform.

Sheriff's office offers free gun safety kits

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Publisher Emeritus The Hancock County Sheriff's office has for the general public free firearm safety kits, just for the asking, Sheriff Steve Garber reports.

The firearms safety kits can be obtained during regular office hours, Monday through Friday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the sheriff's office, Bay St. Louis.

Designed to make homes with firearms safer, Project ChildSafe is funded by a $50 million grant from the U.S. Department of Justice and managed by the National Shooting Sports

Foundation, (NSSF). Project ChildSafe, an expansion HomeSafe. is distributing 20 million more free firearm safety kits as a part of a nationwide initiative to raise awareness about safe and responsible firearm ownership and storage.

Project ChildSafe is an expansion of NSSF's Project HomeSafe, which provided 2.4 million free firearm safety kits to families in 43 states and over 1,000 communities last year.

Crowe said his organization is distributing 275,000 of the firearms safety kits in the state of Mississippi.

Project ChildSafe is a component of Project Safe Neighborhoods, a fun-violence prevention initiative of the Bush Administration. "Project ChildSafe has become the most comprehensive firearm safety education program in America," said Doug Painter, president of NSSF.

"The combination of free gun locking devices, an indepth safety education component and distribution efforts in all 50 states will significantly enhance public awareness of the importance of proper gun storage in the home.

Garber said the gun safety kits are designed to be used on most all hand guns, shotguns and rifles. An instruction pamphlet is included with the firearm safety kits.

PRCC enters season ranked No. 5 in NJCAA preseason poll

Nationally-ranked Pearl River Community College is dead set on successfully defending its 2003 MACJC state football crown - the first such title for the Wildcats in over a quarter of a century.

But third-year head coach Tim Hatten knows it won't be easy, even though the former Wildcat wide receiver says his unit boasts the weapons to repeat.

"But improved talent and more speed doesn't necessarily guarantee more victories in this league," he explained. "This (MACJC) is one of the toughest football conferences in the entire country. Year in and year out, you've got plenty great football teams and it's very, very difficult to go all the way.

"Our goal is a repeat as champions and we're going to give it our very best shot.

PRCC, which finished No. 4 in the final NJCAA rankings last fall, enters 2004 at No. 5 in the preseason poll.

Preseason first-team All-American wide receiver Larry Brackins returns to the line up after leading the state in receiving yardage a year ago with 772 yards, while his 45 receptions and nine touchdowns were both team-high marks. The 6foot-5, 215-pound sophomore from Dothan, Ala.; was named to the All-MACJC first team as a freshman.

Four other returning Wildcats copped NJCAA All-American preseason honorable mention honors in defensive end James Carter of Sandy Hook, linebacker Gene Coleman and running back Bernard Smith, both of Lake Wales, Fla.; and offensive lineman Brad Steube of Pass Christian.

We'll have 14 players that started at one time or the other last season that will be coming back," Hatten said. "That number right there tells you we'll be going with lots of inexperience in our line up."

One "inexperienced" position is at quarterback, but two talented freshmen are battling it out for the starting nod in redshirt Jimmy Oliver of East Marion and true freshman Kyle Sellers of Oak Grove. Johnson, who is taking snaps for North Carolina Central this fall, finished the championship season ranked seventh nationally in passing and third in total offense.

"Anthony was special." Hatten continued, "and we've got a huge task of developing a new guy to take his place. Kyle and Jimmy are special athletes in their own right and we've seen a keen competition for the starting spot.'

Hatten says both have quality arms and gives Sellers the nod in breakneck speed, but Oliver's elusiveness is unmatched.

"You can't tackle him," he said. "Jimmy was our No. 1 guy in the spring and proved he has moves to make things happen. That's something you coach...it's something you're born with. It's in your DNA, I guess.

On the other hand, Sellers was the MHSAA's Class 5A "Offensive Player of the Year" last season after leading Oak Grove to a South State title behind a passing offense practically identical to Pearl River's "spread" scheme.

"Kyle's a winner...that's for sure," Hatten said. "He started three straight years

THE SEA COAST ECHO for Coach (Nevil) Barr at injury. Oak Grove and they ran a very similar offense to ours every season he played. Kyle's smart and, like Jimmy, has the quickness and speed to make something out of nothing. "It's a very heated compe-

Smith will headline PRCC's rushing game after finishing his freshman year as a back up to All-Stater and now Jackson State Tiger Curtis Hayes of Hattiesburg High. Smith has the highest per-carry average among Wildcat runners a year ago, averaging 5.68 yards a tote. He finished the season with 216 yards on 38 carries and 3 TDs. Smith ran for a careerhigh 126 yards in PRCC's 52-13 romp over Copiah-Lincoln in last year's regular-season finale.

Freshman running back Justin Magee of Picayune High will also be in the mix. but Hatten says he could see action as a slot receiver. Other freshmen RBs that will get playing time include Gabe Fairman of Petal and Mike McClendon Quitman.

Matt Lott of Stone Steven County and Pahlman and Brandon Robertson, both of Forrest County AHS; return to anchor the offensive front.

"We've got a solid nucleus up front, but we're going to be depending on several new guys to step up and perform," Hatten said. "It all starts up front."

Hatten is confident Brackins will live up to his preseason billing. He will be joined by sophomore receiver Jacob Garber of Oak Grove who started seven of the Wildcats' 11 games a year ago, while out-of-state freshman Brian Graham is expected to have an impact.

"Brian got great talent and skills," Hatten said of the pass catcher who prepped at Hollywood-McArthur High School in Miami, Fla. "He has great speed and could likely wind up as our punt returner. He returned seven (punts) for touchdowns his senior year down there."

Last year, third-year PRCC defensive coordinator William Jones put together a unit that gave up a meager 118 total points in 11 games (10.7 points per game average). In fact, the Wildcat defenders finished the season with the NJCAA's eighth-best defense and were ranked fifth nationally against the

Two of the integral ingredients to last year's elite mix was Coleman and Carter, while linebacker Glentrelle Ware of Monroe, La.; an All-MACJC player on the 2002 South Division champion Wildcat squad, returns after a year's layoff and should be as good as ever. That duo will be complimented by freshman Charles Brown - a 6-foot-3, 230-pounder from Jacksonville, Fla.

The Wildcats will be hard-pressed to replace the talents of down linemen Kyle Morgan and Dewayne Moss, two 2003 All-MACJC performers who will be demolishing offenses for UCLA and Louisiana Tech, respectively, this fall. But Carter is back and he'll be joined by returning starters Crosby of Marcus

Hattiesburg High Reggie Keys of Biloxi St. Martin this fall, while sophomore Chris Milner of Oak Grove is back to 100 percent after missing much of last season with a shoulder

Irvin Jackson of Hancock County, and Levance. Richmond of Lake Wales, Fla. will also see plenty of Hatten says repeat fever is prevalent in training camp.

"A year ago, we didn't have single guy on our team that had ever won a football championship of any kind," Hatten said. "This year, we've got 30 guys on board with one under already their belts and they want another one. To me, that goes a long, long way towards repeating."

On a recent trip to Gulf Shores, AI, these family and friends from North Hancock County went on a charter fishing trip. They caught fifty four fish including red snapper, triffer fish, scamp grouper, and vermillion snapper. Coast Chorale elects officers for next season

Chorale, Mississippi Gulf Coast community chorus, re-elected Eric Meindl as its President for the 2004 - 2005 performance season. It will be Meindl's fourth year leading the group.

Also elected were Vice Presidents Jim Schnur. Cecilia Howe, and Janice Gleason; Secretary Lynn Fave; and Treasurer Peg Walton. In addition, Janice Gleason was elected to the Coast Chorale's Board of Directors.

Ms. Joy Mehrtens of Bay St. Louis has been Artistic Director of Coast Chorale since it was formed in 1993. The accompanist is Linda Gammell of Gulfport.

The mission of the Chorale is to bring a wide variety of choral music free of charge to its audiences.

a In addition to its coast performances, the group has performed twice Carnegie Hall, and in Vienna, Austria and Verona, Italy. Last June, Coast Chorale added the Vermont International Choir Festival in Stowe, Vermont, to its performance experiences.

Coast Chorale recently was awarded a project grant for the coming season by the Mississippi Commission.

Persons interested in Coast Chorale joining should contact Mehrtens at (228) 463-9215, or Meindl at (228) 466-9529. Tuesday evening rehearsals will resume for the new season on September 7, 2004, at Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian.

FORTY YEARS AGO

August 6, 1964 Qualified elementary teachers wanted, such a sigh should be in Hancock County Superintendent of Education Robert Ladner's office. The shortage of six elementary teachers came to light at the school board's regular meeting Monday, when it accepted the resignation of Sidney M. Seal. Seal, who coached at Gulfview as well as taught, reigned to get more money. Thus as things stood Monday, North Central was short three elementary teachers for the 1964-65 session, Logtown two, and
